Thinking Out Loud

(By H. M. L.)

The Mountain regions, of this section especially, produce many things of value to California, and the nation beside gold. Our altitude and falling water produces power that is used for many miles among the farms and cities in the valley below. Our climate cures many people of whatever that ails them. Our mountain pears, peaches, apples and grapes though yielding small tonnages per acre as compared with the fat valley lands, have a flavor that only our soil, sun and snow can give them.

But after all the most important thing the mountains produce are the men and women who often approximate the magnitude on the human horizon that the mountains attain on the physical horizon. For instance in yesterday's San Francisco Chronicle was the story of Miss Edith White, 81 years old and still happily active and busy, born in Iowa, who came to live at French Corral when a child.

Miss White, a painter of California wild flowers for some fifty years, is now launching upon a word picture of pioneer days in her mountain home. It is to be written for archives of the Bancroft Library, which forms an important historcal division of the University of California Library. From French Corral her parents sent her to Mills College in Oakland where she was educated. She returned to North San Juan after graduating and taught school there for several years. On the romoval of her family to Los Angeles she devoted herself to painting wild flowers and in a very short time won a niche for herself in the halls of fame for her wonderful talent in depicting California's wealth of wild blooming things.

We shall be interested in reading what Miss White writes about French Corral, as it was some sixty years ago, that she lived there. We suspect that what she writes will only serve to emphasize the fact that so far as living conditions on the Ridge are concerned they have changed very little from those she knew in her girlhood. That is to say, the people still use kerosene lamps and lenterns to a great extent, that very few homes have running water in them, that excepting the county and state highways, the roads are no better than they were in the Seventies. In other words modern advantages of living have very largely passed the Ridge by.

Communications to and from the Ridge are better. The state highway running across it and the automobile have accomplished that, and the telephone and radio bring the Ridge dwellers into the great community of the nation. But water is not so plentiful as it was even a few years ago. It is a real chore to go out to the well, draw water, heat it and fill a tub, and the majority of families on the Ridge have to do that very thing. If Miss White were to return to the Ridge, in many particulars, she would find it as she left it some sixty years ago.

This is only preliminary to calling attention once again to the wonderful possibilities of establishing on the Ridge one of those rehabilitation projects which the New Deal is so vigorously pushing elsewhere. The first need of the Ridge is an abundant supply of water. The second is the installation of an electric power and light system. While Nevada City folks think of their climate as the best this side of Heaven, French Corral's climate is superior to it. The elevation is lower. Snow rarely falls there. The land is generally more fertile than here. With water and electricity the whole ridge could be made a paradise of small self-sustaining homes.

And the people of the Ridge are trying to keep step with the time. They have a fine progressive organization, the San Juan Ridge Improvement League, which has already built, and is rapidly paying for, Twamley Hall, a community enterprise. The League has done much to focus attention on the many natural advantages which the Ridge possesses. We hope, that with the building of the great debris dam at the Narrows and the opening up of the immense gravel deposits along the Ridge, prosperity will again come to abide with the good people there who have clung to their homes through good times and bad for so many years; that the Ridge may continue to send forth into the world men and women who attain distinction in many lines of endeavor.

Old Gold And Crimson Conifers

Editorial Note: This is the first of four installments of the story by Katherine Braithwaite, author of North San Juan, who has won fame by writing historical and travel sketches of the Sierra country.

(By KATHERINE BRAITHWAITE)

Volumes have been printed of the romantic characters and incomparable beauty of California's natural scenery, Spanish dons, Mission priests, and the brave generals and captains of the early wars. Songs and poems, reach to the far heavens in praise of the golden sun, the smooth beaches, and the grandeur of mountains and valleys.

Snappy heel-clicking martial activity, languid sun-drugged siestas and the slow penitent steps of the barefoot padres march across the stage of memory in a setting more fairylike than realistic. But it is real,. The mind may not be able to grasp it all as a whole, but the eyes behold a sunset more gorgeous than an artist can paint; fragrance far sweeter than the lotus blossoms accompanies every breeze and the nerves tingle to the indefinable voice of Nature which is the lure of this marvelous state.

Much less has been written in recent years of the forty niners and the formidable hills that demanded their adventurous spirit and dauntless courage to dig out the yellow wealth of the green grass carpeted foothills Satiated by the siren charms of the colorful Spanish Missions epoch or lulled into blissful indifference by the murmur of a blue and white ocean one is apt to overlook the Mother Lode country and fail to appreciate its interesting history and the cosmoplite mass of humanity who enacted a drama of unquestionable importance in the early construction of the state of California.

Consumed with lust for gold the miners, who represented people from all parts of the globe, bent their backs and with tender or calloused hands grubbed for riches and automatically carved an historical and geographical monument of their own. A rugged stone, this monument typical of the men needed to crush the hard sharp rocks and release the nuggets and yellow dust. Typical of the cold haughty mountains standing aloof from the beaches and grimly guarding their wealth and scenic wonders with perpetual frown and seemingly impenetratable wilderness.

It may be that the Mother Lode Country is the most famous gold belt in the world's history. It was called Mother Lode because the miners of the roaring "forties" and affluent "fifties" in California imagined that the great, gold bearing quartz vein had an ancestral relation to the smaller ones. Millions and millions of dollars have been taken from the famous mines of the Mother Lode and when the yield grew slender the miners deserted their towns, leaving behind them picturesque buildings and other physical reminders that lure thousands of people annually to the district.

To really enjoy the Mother Lode country one should know something of the first gold strike and realize the significance of the monument to James Marshall at Coloma and other markers along the way. Mark Twain's "Roughing It" and Bret Harte's stories, for the most part, have California settings, and the reading of them before a contemplated tour of the good fields will add enjoyment to a journey through the districts which they describe. Teeming with reminders of a romantic, vanished era when the "gold diggin's" were a magnet that drew the adventurous citizens of the world to the Pacific Coast, the Mother Lode country has a peculiar attraction that intices thousands of motorists into old deserted ghost towns located near such thriving communities as Angel's Camp, San Andreas, Sonora and Tuolumne.

It is a land made famous by Mark Twain, Bret Harte, and Joaquin Miller. Those who remember such tales as "Tennessee's Pardner" look for places immortalized in yarns of 1849 and the Argonauts. In 1938 General John A. Sutter, a Swiss who had found his way to California by a devious route, had obtained a grant of land from the Spanish government and was entrenched in the Sac-

WHISKERINOS PUT PEP IN NOR. SAN JUAN DANCE

(By KATHERINE BRAITHWAITE)

The exceptionally large dance hall at North San Juan was filled to overflowing last Saturday night by great crowds that flocked up to the Ridge from half a dozen counties to attend the Whiskerino dance. Entering into the spirit of fun and entertainment that will be a feature of the big celebration to be held the 3rd and 5th of July at Nevada City, the men from the mountains proved they are capable of raising the world's finest whiskers. Red shirts, frock coats, and cowhide boots were greatly in evidence and added plenty of color and appropriate atmosphere to the dance.

On May 5th in Nevada City enthusiastic Whiskerinos from all parts of this district met and formed a county chapter of this well-known order. Officers were elected and the next meeting set for Friday night, May 15th, at Armory Hall. The head mugs motored to North San Juan Saturday night and took charge of the dance and placed into custody any or all of the misguided dancers who felt inclined to defi the edicts of the Whiskerinos. Ted Janiss, Boss Whiskerino for the Nevada City Whiskerino Club No. 57, Warren Smith sub-chief of the Grass Valley Whiskerino Club, Jack Williams, scribbler, and L. V. Johnson, assistant scribbler, were on hand to obtain new members for the Nevada City Whiskerino Club and to invite all bewhiskered gents of North San Juan and surrounding towns to attend the big Whiskerino meeting next Friday evening. Janiss reported that fifty new members joined and expected many more would follow suit by the end of the week. Among those attending from Nevada City were: Jack Clark and party; Jack Woods who was awarded prize for best set of whiskers. Andy Jones ,Joe Moody, Glenn Cleland, Wm. Jones, Everett McCollom, Steve Matildia, Stanley Davidson, Ross Flattey and many others.

When it comes to delivering a successful festival, carnival or feature dance it takes the North San Juan Improvement League's own president Frank Miller to put it on in grand style. Mr. Miller has been unable to attend the dances for several months and it pepped everyone up to ful capacity to see his smiling face and feel the power of his unlimited energy among the throng Saturday night. He supervised the valuable prizes given away by the Alpha Hardware company, Orrin Thompson, Nevada City Nugget, W. E. Moulton, Mr. Mike Denike and other merchants of the Twin Cities.

Mr. Jack Woods of Nevada City won the prize for the best set of whiskers. This was a case of beer donated by the Whiskerino Club of Nevada City. Mr. Miller reports that details of the Ridges' Cherry Carnival slated for 13 and 14 of June are rapidly taking shape and will be one of the best events staged since the beginning of this Ridge celebration many years ago.

North San Juan and Nevada City Whiskerinos are going to attend a meeting of Grass Valley Whiskerinos Tuesday night in Memorial Hall, Grass Valley. Every Whiskerino is cordially invited to attend this great rally of hairy faces.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Johnson, arrived in Nevada City Saturday having returned from a motor trip to Chicago. They are spending a few days in this city with Mrs. Johnson's mother, Mrs. Mary Guenther, and other family members.

THIS LAW SUSPENDS MINE ASSESSMENT WORK

From Congressman Harry L. Englebright yesterday came a letter stating that Congress had again enacted the law suspending assessment work, under certain conditions, on mining claims. Enclosed was a copy of the law which follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled. That the provision of section 2324 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, which requires on each mining claim located, and until a patent has been issued therefor, not less than $100 worth of labor to be performed or improvements aggregating such amount to be made each year, be, and the same is hereby, suspended as to all mining claims in the United States during the year beginning at 12 o'clock meridian July 1, 1936, and ending at 12 o'clock meridian July 1, 1936: Provided, That the provisions of this Act shall not apply in the case of any claimant not entitled to exemption from the payment of a Federal income tax for the taxable year 1936: Provided further, That every claimant of any such mining claim, in order to obtain the benefits of this Act, shall file, or cause to be filed, in the office where the location notice or certificate is recorded, on or before 12 o'clock meridian July 1, 1936, a notice of his desire to hold said mining claim under this Act, which notice shall state that the claimant, or claimants, were entitled to exemption from the payment of a Federal income tax for the taxable year 1935: And provided further. That such suspension of assessment work shall not apply to more than six lode-mining claims held by the same person, nor to more than twelve lode-mining claims held by the same partnership, association, or corporation; And provided further, That such suspension of assessment work shall not apply to more than six placer-mining claims not to exceed one hundred and twenty acres (in all) held by the same person, nor to more than twelve placer mining claims not to exceed two hundred and forty acres (in all) held by the same partnership, association or corporation.

Smoothie's Lament

(By Francis Bradford)

I thought the day of the strokable beard
And the twistable moustache, past;
I understood that caressable mugs
Should shine with a clean-shaven cast.

I thought it true that the pan to be loved
Was the smoothable hairless face,
But now I see that I'm standing alone
In barren and glowing disgrace.

But since I'm one of a coaxable type,
And in fear of their heavy hand,
I start today in obliging the boys
In meeting the local command.

I'll grow a beard and an itchy moustache;
And I'll suffer along or die,
And count the hours 'til the dawn of that day—
The glorious Fifth of July!

Three Grass Valley People Drown In Boat Crash On Sacramento

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hamilton, both 35 years of age, and Mr. Harold R. "Dick" Trathen, aged 28 years, all of Grass Valley, lost their lives yesterday when a row boat with an outboard motor they had hired to fish from was demolished at the I street bridge on the Yolo county side at Sacramento. Mrs. Dorothy Dunn, of Sacramento, who was in the party miraculously escaped.

It is claimed that Hamilton must have lost control of the boat and it crashed the big barge Minnesota and slid under it. Mrs. Dunn was the only one to come up and a boatman nearby rushed to her rescue and she was taken to a hospital. It was reported she died last evening but news from there this morning states she is still alive, but delirious. It is not known how seriously she is injured. The river is being dragged for the bodies of those drowned.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hamilton lived in Willow Valley east of Nevada City until about a year ago when they bought a home and moved to Grass Valley. They leave to mourn their passing two children six and eight years of age, and Mr. Hamilton has two brothers living in the Grass Valley section.

Mr. Trathen was widely known as a semi professional baseball player. Both men were employed at the Idaho-Maryland mine at Grass Valley. Mr. Trathen being timberman. Mr. Trathen is from a well known Grass Valley family and several family members are left to mourn his untimely passing.

BULL TRAMPLES WOMAN TO DEATH

Mrs. Paulina Silicani, about 50, was trampled to death by a bull on Thursday night on the Silicani ranch, three miles west of here on Cement Hill.

A. L. Silicani, the husband of the deceased, told the authorities his wife was attempting to drive the bull from one field to another when he turned on her and knocked her down with his head and then began trampling her with his feet. The bull has no horns.

Silicani did not witness the accident. He was milking at the time, heard the dogs barking and when he investigated found the prostrate body of his wife. The woman died a few minutes later in their home.

Deputy Coroner Merritt Smith said no inquest will be held.

The funeral services will be held 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon under the direction of Holmes Funeral Home of this city.

ROY MATTOX IS ARRESTED AGAIN

Roy Mattox, miner, who is charged with stealing a Chevrolet car from a fellow employe at the Zeibright mine on Wednesday, was apprehended Saturday in Merced. Sheriff Carl Tobiassen, sent a deputy to bring the man back. The car allegedly stolen belonged to a friend. Mattox was recently given a sentence of sixty days in jail by Justice of the Peace Moorehouse in Grass Valley, which was suspended on condition that he return to work in the Zeibright mine. On Wednesday morning he reported for work in an allegedly drunken condition and was promptly discharged. He took the car, the sheriff states, and went back by way of Emigrant Gap and down the Apburn road to avoid meeting with officers in this county.

'BURNT DISTRICT' IS SOLD AGAIN

Isador Cheim, business man of Marysville, completed a deal Saturday in which he purchased the "Burnt District" near the Plaza in Nevada City from the Empire Star Mines, Ltd., who purchased the property nearly a year ago from the Angiolini estate. The property lies between Broad and Main streets with a frontage of about 150 feet on each street. It is bounded on the north by the brick building of Mr. A. M. Holmes and extends to the middle of Deer Creek.

Mr. Cheim purchased the property as an investment, believing Nevada City has a bright future. He has leased a part of the property to the Nevada City Chevrolet company and is negotiating with a large oil company for the balance of the lot. The Chevrolet agency is to be known as the Nevada City Motor Company, a firm under the management of the Grass Valley Motor Company, Mr. Cheim being a brother in law of Gerald Brust, secretary of the Grass Valley firm.

Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Miller of Fontana are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jack Osborne of Town Talk.

NOTED MINING MAN SUCCUMBS

Charles A. Brockington, 79, credited with opening ten mines in this section during his long mining career, died Friday afternoon at his home here following two years of illness.

The noted Grass Valley mining man began his career as a tool-nipper in the Empire Mine there when 14 years old.

After working eight years in the Empire Mine, Brockington spent five years at the Old Idaho Mine. In 1880 he went to Alaska, returning in 1881 to again accept employment at the Empire Mine. In 1884 he worked at the Total Wreck Mine in Arizona.

Returning in a short time to Grass Valley he with his two brothers, A. J. and Ed Brockington and three others, W. J. Connors and Patrick and John Feeney, organized the W. Y. O. D. Mine. They worked the mine at a profit for six years. When the mine was sold, Brockington took charge of the Sultana mine.

Probably his most notable achievement was the organization and development of the Golden Center mine, now owned by Cooley Butler, one of the heaviest producers in the Grass Valley district.

Other mines in which he had charge of the reopening included the Prescott Hill, the Inkmarque and the Orleans.

After retiring in 1920, Brockington was again called into service when operations started at the Bullion mine. He was forced by illness to quit work several years ago and for the last two years had been unable to leave his home.

Each month since his retirement as superintendent of the Bullion hine, he had received a check from the company.

Surviving relatives include his niece, Martha Brockington, who has taken care of him during his long illness. Funeral servives were held under direction of Holmes-Hooper Funeral Home.

ANOTHER ACCIDENT ON DOWNIEVILLE ROAD

Earl Barker, who has been employed at Schreiber's Cafe at different times, was severely injured Saturday evening when the car in which he and several companions were riding, is reported to have gone over the bank while the party were coming from North San Juan. Barker was moved from the scene of the accident by Holmes Funeral Home ambulance service to the county hospital where Dr. A. H. Tickell found he had suffered from a badly torn left arm and severely wrenched knee. He is resting well according to latest reports, but definite results can not be determined yet, Superintendent Rodda states.

The Bay Bridge

(Contributed)

A dream men dreamed decades ago in California will flower into full reality soon. The great San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge will be thrown open to traffic on November seventh.

It will be no mere local occasion for civic rejoicing when this graceful colossus in steel—the world's largest bridge—opens its majestic pathway from shore to shore high over the vast turbulent waters of the bay.

The whole state will participate in dedication ceremonies, and the nation and the world will be watching. The secretaries of Navy and War have been asked to detail the fleet and the combined air forces to the scene. There will be fiestas, and caravans, ox teams and airplanes, speeches and cheers. And well might there be.

What a gigantic thing this bridge is! It will span the largest major navigable body of water yet bridged. The cable wire alone is sufficient to encircle the earth nearly three times. With the concrete and steel in it you could rebuild all the large office buildings of downtown San Francisco, or thirty five Los Angeles city halls.

Scarcely six months more, and the vision of decades ago will have come to pass. Scarcely six months more, and there will stand amid all California's natural wonders of the world, a man made wonder challenging even nature's most awe-inspiring creations.

TO RESUME WORK ON JIM MINE PROPERTY

Mr. C. Columbus, Jr., of Southern California, passed through Nevada City Monday enroute to the Jim Mine which is being operated by his father. A tractor was used to bring the men from the mine out over about a foot of snow last fall. It has been stored at Washington and was taken to the mine. A crew of seven started to work preparing for a big program of work this summer.

An interesting feature of the developing of this property is the fact that the father and three sons are all working at the property, several southern California financiers being associated with them in developing the mine. The father and two sons were detained and will be up a month later.

A good sized ledge of ore was opened last year, the mill recovering splendid values in concentrates. The property is located north of Washington and not far from Graniteville.

Mrs. J. C. Eagan and son, Joseph Jr., of Sacramento, spent last week end visiting Mrs. Eagan's sister, Mrs. Ed Conley and family. While here they visited the old homes of Lola Montez and Lotta Crabtree in Grass Valley.

ANGLER SAYS HE WAS ONLY FISHING FOR FROGS

The following letter is self-explanatory:

Nevada City Nugget:

Nevada City
May 10, 1936.

Dear Sir:

In reply to article in your paper on date, May 5, 1936, wish to state that I was not fishing on Idaho-Maryland property and would like it clearly understood as so.

As for fishing, there have been two hundred or more anglers who have as yet not caught any fish.

And Idaho Maryland doesn't own it. As I live on the property and high water has washed all said planted fish below the Idaho Maryland mine, and also there is cyanide from the mill which killed the fish. But the stream is rich in frogs and that is what I was after. So if you like my statements you may print them, if not, don't.

Yours sincerely,
Aloha
GILBERT KIIHOA.

DRIVER IN HOSPITAL TO FACE PROSECUTION

Earl Monnier, who crashed into and broke the boulevard stop sign at the Plaza, demolished a gasoline pump, and broke the glass in another pump Friday at the Plaza garage, was taken to the county hospital Saturday morning for treatment for internal injuries. Dr. A. H. Tickell, who examined Monnier found a stomach injury, but feels he will be fully recovered in a couple of days. It is thought he suffered the injury when his car hit the solid cement block the stop sign was embedded in. Monnier will be charged with reckless driving when he has sufficiently recovered.

NATIONALIZATION FOR HISTORIC S. F. MINE EXCHANGE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—The fact that the San Francisco Mining Exchange, the oldest mining exchange in the world, becomes a National Exchange on June 1, has brought about unusual interest in the listing of ming stocks on this market, says President F. H. Walker. Already 11 companies have started the preparation of the necessary steps for listing and it is expected that as many as 20 new companies may make their appearance within the next sixty days.

At the same time there is a greater interest in the purchase of seats than has been seen in a decade. It is probable that a number of new brokers will be added to the roster before the end of the month.

The applications for listing are coming from many well known mining companies that have heretofore had only an over the counter market. These are from various parts of the United States and Canada.

The revival of interest in mining promises to again make the San Francisco Mining Exchange, where more mining shares have changed hands than in any other place in America, one of the leading exchanges in the United States.

LIQUID AIR WILL BE DEMONSTRATED AT HI

A program, sponsored by the National school assemblies will be presented at the local high school Wednesday when James Williams will demonstrate the wonders of liquid air to those students who attend. Startling experiments will be presented, and simple explanations will clarify the mystery of their performance. Mr. Williams comes equipped with elaborate equipment to hold this scientific demonstration.

A charge of admission will be made, and time allowed for those students who are interested in such a demonstration. Among other things Mr. Williams will form a hammer of frozen mercury, and will demonstrate a liquid air machine. This is the first show of its kind to be presented to the local high school student body.

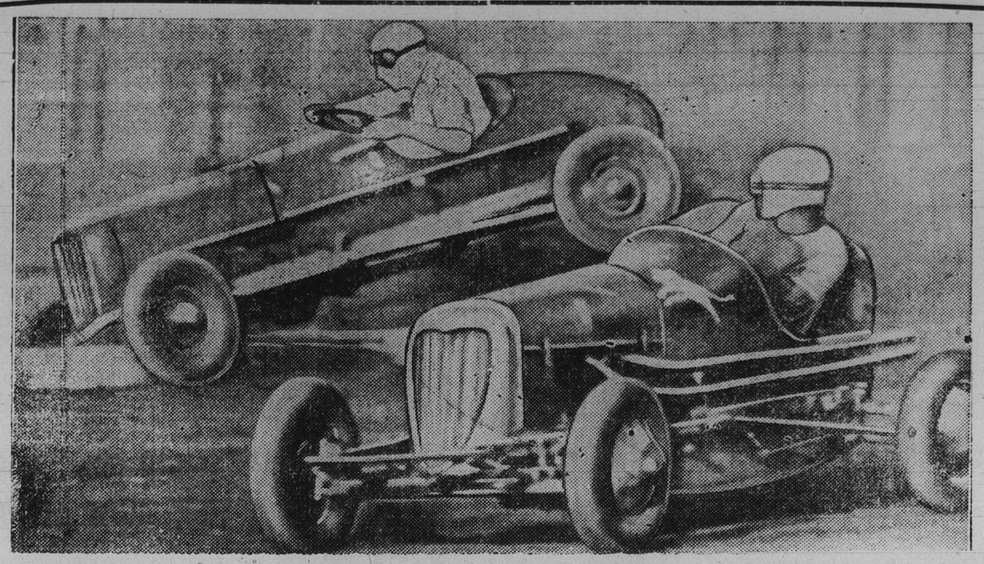
OVER THE FENCE IS OUT



Two roaring little midgets tangle on a sharp curve as they tune up for the weekly race program which opens Tuesday, May 12 at the Sacramento Junior College Stadium. The races will be under the sponsorship of the Sacramento Post, No. 61 of the American Legion.

SACRAMENTO, May 11.—Twenty of Northern California's leading midget racing car drivers are tuning up their 100-mile-an-hour motors for the opening of the weekly midget auto racing season in Sacramento, which starts Tuesday night, May 12. The races will be held on the junior college stadium track.

The event, sponsored by the Sacramento Post No. 61 of the American Legion, marks the return of the mightly little chargers to Sacramento, here the first midget auto race ever staged was held June 4, 1933.

Since then, when poorly equipped cars and inexperienced drivers put on the show, the sport has become one of America's most popular and exciting sporting events.

The Northern California Midget Association, under whose auspices the races will be run, operates a near-nightly circuit in San Francisco, Oakland and Fresno. Southern California has a similar circuit, racing every night of the week.

Ken Hupp, president of the Nite Speedways, Inc., promoter of the local races, announced that the leading drivers of the association are signed for the weekly races here.

Among the top-notchers who will pilot their speedy little cars over the fast and hazardous quarter mile oval for the 100 lap program are Al Stein, 1935 champion, Lynn Deister, Dutch Van Tassel, Skeets Jones, Fred Aagbashian, Les Driesbach, Dave Oliver, Art Armstrong and Bryce, leading point men in the northern racing association.

OLD GOLD

ramento Valley as the lord and master. James W. Marshall, a millwright employed by General Sutter was sent to find a site for a mill. He found that Coloma, and found also the gold that was to start the greatest continental migration in the history of this part of the world. Marshall died almost a pauper, and Sutter, who preferred to dig his gold from the ground in the form of crops fared little better. He was virtually ousted by squatters and gold hunters.

Marshall's discovery was in January of 1848. By 1849 the country was full of miners and a colorful and important phase of California's history started. San Francisco boomed and became a cosmopolitan center; Sacramento, Marysville, Yuba City and Oroville became towns of size and importance. Steamers plied the Sacramento river on their way to the gold fields; stage coaches rattled in and out of the cities. Great schemes for recovering the gold were hatched, financed and sometimes succeeded. Wealth apparently was to be plucked out of the air, so free was everyone with gold.

Great, robust characters, peopled the mining centers. Bandts, parsons, gentlemen gamblers, bankers, and financiers rubbed elbows in the lively towns while in the gulches the swarms of men dug for gold, some coming out in a few weeks with fortunes. Violence was frequent and justice was dispensed simply and quickly, with death the verdict for a major crime. There was seemingly no end to the prosperity, yet today many of these gold towns are ghost towns yet romantic and colorful to the visitor, and still holding enough gold to balance the national budget many times over if hydraulic mining were permitted.

Enroute to the Mother Lode country one may travel by way of the city of Stockton which in the days of '49 was the Mecca of Miners, and much of the early history of the state was made here, as this city was the starting point for the gold miners of Amador, Calaveras and Tuolumne counties. Stockton was named after Captain Stockton. It was founded in 1847 by Captain Charles M. Weber, a German who received a grant in conjunction with William Gulnac of the Camp de los Frances Rancho. In a few months Captain Weber bought out Gulnac and started a settlement which was variously known as "Weber Settlement," "French Camp," or as Weber himself called it "Tuleberg."

During the Mexican war Captain Weber was arrested and carried into Baja California by a Mexican general. He was, however, released and on returning from the south met Commodore Stockton who became interested in the settlement and promised his aid. In gratitude to his friend, Weber changed the name of Tuleberg to Stockton. With the discovery of gold the infant settlement grew into populous center in short time. As it was situated at head of San Joaquin river navigation and in close proximity to the mines, it had a large floating population, and had all the stirring phases of life which characterized the days of 1849.

The gold trail out of Stockton begins on tree lined Miner avenue which leads on to Linden road. Tedious mountain climbing has been eliminated by a new asphaltic highway on which the most dilapidated car in existence can traverse in high gear. As one drives along historical Linden road prosperous ranches, acres of melon land large country estates readily give way to bare cattle-grazing foothills that round off into the distance on every side.

But this old, worn trail, blazed by gold crazed miners, stretches determindly straight ahead for miles with out a noticeable curve. From the bright blue skies above, the fiery sun streams down and artistically bleaches the green grass on the hillsides and plains to a golden tan. Heat waves flicker in weird fantastic patterns, or form placid mirage lakes on the hot oil splashed asphalt. Hot smothering breezes, fragrant with sage brush and eucalyptus trees, sweep up dust and dried tumble weeds and whirl them dizzily over taut barged wire fences. Then gradully beautiful valley oaks and wild holly shrubs begin to fill in the landscape and clothe the hills as the road climbs to San Andreas, the Spanish name for St. Andrew.

This is one of the old mining towns and here at the age of fifteen came Bret Harte to be a forty niner and found no gold but left immortal stories and poems of the gold rush. The cabin supposed to be one that figures in "Tennessee's Pardner," his famous story, as well as the locale for many other of this writer's unforgettable tales, is still standing.

In San Andreas was laid the scene of "The Jumping Rrog of Calaveras County," by Mark Twain and in the bar of the Metropolitan Hotel, recently destroyed by fire, took place the incident which inspired the story.

San Andreas has narrow streets and the settled air of an old town. Here are a number of old historical buildings, the Agostino building, the Cassinelli Adobe, and the old Friedberger building. Scattered around San Andreas are the mining settlements of Jackson, Sutter Creek and Mokelumne Hill. The latter where Joaquin Murietta, Spanish grande, turned bandit when he and his friends were wronged by the miners and, organizing a desperate gang of robbers ,terrorized these settlements with his Robin Hood acttivities of robbing the rich for untold benefactions to the poor.

HYDRAULIC ASSN. IS SEEKING MORE GRAVEL SIGNERS

The California Hydraulic Mining Association held a meeting in Bret Harte Inn in Grass Valley last Saturday. At this meeting a committee was chosen by the board of directors, composed of William Allen, Smartsville, manager of the Ayer interests; C. F. Harvey, mining engineer associated with Forest Hill Divide mining developments; Leroy Palmer, San Francisco mining engineer interested in the resumption of hydraulic mining.

Plans are to sign up as many of the large gravel property operators with definite committments as possible. It is felt these big companies are better prepared to meet the requirements and once the dams are secured the smaller operators can secure permits in the usual way, from the Debris Commission.

A group composed of Senator Jerrold L. Seawell, J. P. Hall and William Esterley, was selected as a committee to study mining insurance rates.

A committee from Colfax invited the association to hold a meeting in that city July 4th at which time it is expected Congressman H. L. Englebright will speak.

The California Hydraulic Mining Association accepted an invitation to hold a meeting at North San Juan a former hydraulic center, on May 23.

Mr. Nick Sandow who has been ill at his home the past month, was able to return to his work with the city this morning.

RECKLESS DRIVER LOSES LICENSE FINED $25

Sune A. Bucht, who was arrested on a reckless driving charge a few days ago, was fined $25 and had his driver's license suspended 30 days under a judgment filed Saturday in City Judge Miles Coughlin's court. Bucht struck the car of Mrs. M. Costello of Nevada City on the Gault bridge while traveling at a dangerous rate of speed. Mr. Coughlin stressed the scene of this accident as particularly dangerous and recommended that motorists, tempted to drive too fast, be more careful while crossing the narrow bridge as it endangers drivers as well as pedestrians, who also have a path on the bridge.

ARKANSAS CENTENNIAL STAMPS SOON AVAILABLE

A special news release of interest to philatelists was made late last week when the announcement was made public concerning the first day sale of the Arkansas Centennial Commemorative three cent stamp in Little Rock, Arkansas, on Monday, June 15. Second day sales will be held at Washington, D. C., and in all post offices in Arkansas on Tuesday, June 16. On Wednesday, June 17, the stamp will be sold in all post offices in the United States.

The stamp should prove of unusual interest to philatelists, honoring as it does Arkansas' Centennial of state hood. The face of the stamp will bear a picture of the Old State House which was begun in 1833 and partially completed by 1836 for the first meeting of the Arkansas state legislature.

PRINTS OF FAMOUS PAINTINGS AT SCHOOL

One of the finest exhibits of reproductions of famous paintings seen in Nevada City in several years is on display in the sewing room of the Washington grammar school all this week. The Colonial Art Company is displaying the 160 pictures which feature work of many American, English, Dutch, French, German and Italian artists. Such names as Carl Marr, George Innes, Tellander, Stuart, and Amick are among the Americans, while others are Monet, Corot, Rembrandt, Van Dyck, Pissaro, Angelo. Many subejcts are portrayed, but landscapes and religious subjects predominate. Three pictures by Amick, American "Old Oregon Trail," "The Craftsman," "Phantom Canyon," and "Shepherd's Happiness" by Schwartz. are outstanding for charm and beauty of coloring and no doubt will be favorites.
